STEWART HAS “SLUSH FUND” BONDS

STANDARD OIL HEAD TESTIFIES IN SENATE QUIZ

Declares Bonds Had Been Transferred To “Trust Fund” For Two Companies.

WASHINGTON, April 24 — Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil of Indiana today told the senate oil inquiry that he received $759,500 of the Continental Trading company's mysterious $3,030,000 Liberty “slush fund.”

Stewart said he transferred the bonds to a “trust fund” for the Standard Oil of Indiana and the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. In event of his death, Stewart said, the two companies would share equally in his share of the Continental bonds.

His testimony identified Stewart as the missing “fourth partner” in the Continental deal.

Stewart testified that the bonds were turned over to him by Henry Smith Osler, president of the Continental, in 1922 and 1923 at meetings in Chicago and New York. He said he immediately created the “trust fund” and made Roy J. Barnett, a tax expert of his company, the trustee.

On last Saturday, with Harry F. Sinclair acquitted, Stewart said he revealed the story of the bonds to the board of directors of the Standard oil of Indiana. The directors decided to turn the bonds over to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company, he added. This delivery was made through Barnett on Saturday.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh (D) of Montana, reminded Stewart that the Harry F. Sinclair case was ended. Stewart, when he denied the senate several weeks ago, said he did so because he was to be a witness in the Sinclair case.

Stewart said he first learned he was to share in the Continental profits when he met Osler in Chicago on Nov. 26, 1921.

“Osler said that part of the profits of this company would be given to me,” said Stewart. “I told him I didn't want any of the profits but he said, I would get them and I could do what I wanted with them. That was the first time I heard of any disposition to give me a part of the profits.”

Stewart said he immediately decided to create a “trust fund” to hold the bonds for the Standard Oil of Indiana and the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. He did so, making Barnett the trustee.

Stewart's attitude today was entirely different from that expected in his previous appearance as a witness, whereas then he was belligerent, pounded the table, shouted at committee members and finally defied the senate, today he was eager to talk, tractable and frank. On one occasion, he said today “I'm not attempting to fence with you — No, I'm not.”

CIRCLEVILLE WATERWORKS IN $3,000,000 OHIO MERGER

Authority to merge waterworks plants in Circleville, Massillon, Washington C. H., Marysville and Struthers has been granted by the state utilities commission to The Ohio Water Service company, of Massillon, it was announced at Columbus Tuesday.

The Massillon concern, formerly The Massillon Water Supply Co. was granted permission to issue $3,000,000 in new first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, $1,173,000 in 6 per cent preferred stock and 38,552 shares of no-par common stock, valued at $385,520, for the purpose of purchasing these properties, retiring outstanding securities and reimbursing the company's treasury for uncanceled capital expenditures.

The commission authorized the Ohio Water Service Co. to make the following purchases: Properties of The Marysville Water company for $177,920; The Ohio Water Corporation's plants at Circleville and Washington C. H. for $668,630 and of The Mahoning Valley Water company, Struthers for $2,447,060.

ROB HENNERLY FOUR TIMES; TWO MEN FINED

Philip Reed and Leonard Crosby Plead Guilty Before Mayor Hedges.

Pleading guilty to a charge of stealing chickens, Philip Reed, aged 24, and Leonard Crosby, aged 19, each was fined $25 and costs by Mayor Hedges, Tuesday.

Reed was sent to the county jail when he was unable to pay his fine. Crosby was released from custody on promise of relatives to pay his fine. Costs in both cases were suspended.

The pair were charged with having robbed the henry of Elmer Cook, Columbus Pike, on four different occasions—April 2, 6, 7 and 23. Only one chicken was stolen on the 23rd, but the men were followed to the firm of Thomas Rader & Sons, where they sold it. Records showed that they had received $14 for chickens sold. Officer McCrady made the arrests.

M. E. THRAILKILL IS SERIOUSLY ILL

M. E. Thrailkill, a former resident of Darby-twp., is seriously ill at his home, 696 East Broad st., Columbus.

He collapsed Sunday when he returned home from his farm in the northern part of Pickaway-co and has been under the care of a physician ever since. His ailment is attributed to overwork.

Mr. Thrailkill, one of the best known attorneys in Franklin-co, is in charge of Miss Ellabeth Ruggles' land interests in this county.

NEW YORK, April 24 — Two persons were killed and seven were seriously injured today in a fire which destroyed a four-story frame tenement building in Brooklyn.

Germes Carried By Letter Cause the Illness of Child

MARGARET JENNINGS, aged 13, who resides with her parents south of Williamsport, is seriously ill with scarlet fever which she contracted a few days ago from a letter she received from a girl friend in Franklin county.

The letter was written two weeks ago, and was carried from the quarantined home and delivered to the Jennings residence. The Jennings girl picked up the letter a few days ago and re-read it. She became ill the following day, and her illness was pronounced scarlet fever by Dr. Marcy the family physician.

The case was reported to County Health Officer Heffner and the home was placed under quarantine.

The room in the Williamsport school, over which Miss Schleich presides as teacher, and in which Miss Jennings was a pupil, has been dismissed for the time being, as it is feared germs may have been scattered in the school room. The place has been quarantined and fumigated.

CHARGE SILVER MINERS OUST FOXES KILLED YOUNG LEADER BY AIRPLANES AS DISLOYAL

Ranchers Say Noise Frightens Mothers, Causing Them To Destroy Pups.

As a result of loss of pups due to the frightening of mothers by low flying airplanes, the Scioto Valley Silver Fox ranch, Columbus Pike, Tuesday was preparing to seek an injunction restraining planes of the Gates Flying Circus from flying over the ranch.

Three litters were lost Sunday and two Saturday Manager Turnage of the ranch declared, stating that instructions had been given to Attorney Garrett S. Claypool to bring injunction proceedings if the circus continues to operate from the Harmout field, which adjoins the ranch.

Members of the circus said they could not land their planes without passing over the fox farm because of wind conditions.

Manager Turnage said it was impossible to place any estimate on the loss through the killing of the young foxes.

Female foxes when about to bear young are placed in individual boxes where they remain until about three days after a litter is born. Only feeders approach them during this season, he said, as excitement is very harmful, and often results in the mothers killing the young.

The three litters said to have been killed Sunday were located in No. 1 section of the ranch, according to the manager.

Daugherty Fired As President of Nelsonville Sub-District.

COLUMBUS, O., April 24—Oral Daugherty, militant young Hocking Valley mine leader, today had been ousted from his post as president of the Nelsonville sub-district on charges of insubordination and disloyalty brought against him in a meeting of the district executive board of the United Mine Workers of America here last night.

Robert Bell, vice-president of the sub-district, automatically becomes president.

Several hundred union men who have taken part in marches and other demonstrations of protest against the union were ordered expelled from the organization at last night's meeting.

The board said the drastic moves were taken, “to preserve harmony within the ranks of the organization and to discipline ‘Save the Union’ marchers.”

Dismissal of Daugherty, it was announced, resulted from “his action in publicly opposing policies of the organization and for failing to comply with obligations required of a member of the United Mine Workers.”

GEN. BOOTH ILL

LONDON, April 24 — W. Bramwell Booth, head of the Salvation Army, was reported ill at his home here today.

BARTHOLOMEW JURY CHOSEN; TRIAL STARTS

First Witness Takes Stand In Trial Against New Holland Banker.

An old man sat quietly in the Pickaway-co. court room Tuesday and heard lawyers and witnesses attempt to wreck a reputation built by years of dealings with his neighbors.

He is M. S. Bartholomew, vice president of the First National bank of New Holland. He is accused of forging a notation raising the interest rate from 6 to 7 per cent on a note for $3,500 held by the bank against Miss Emma and Miss Artie Porter. The note originally had been signed by a brother, W. C. Porter, who died some time ago.

Miss Emma Porter was the first witness on the stand Tuesday. Several exhibits were placed in the record by the prosecution. Among them was an envelope containing a letter in reference to the payment of the note. The letter was signed by “M. S. Bartholomew.”

The name, “Emma” was misspelled.

The old banker, 77-years old, listened to the proceedings calmly. His attorneys, Irvin F. Snyder, Charles H. May and Charles E. Eresbach, were quick to combat every point designed by the prosecution to weaken the defense. Prosecuting Attorney Brown was assisted by Attorneys Hahn and Cowen, of Columbus.

The jurors in the case are: Harry Crist, Mrs. James Carpenter, James Baughman, Wolfson Parrott, Pearl Armstrong, Thomas Wardell, John Wardell, Mrs. Ros Valentine, John A. List, F. E. Barnhill, Finley Jones, George Bolender.

These ten men and two women will decide whether the banker shall spend his remaining few years in a felon's cell.

FLOYD BENNETT IS NEAR DEATH

QUEBEC, Que., April 24 — Gently resisting the ravages of double pneumonia and pleurisy, Floyd Bennett, who piloted Commander Byrd's plane to the North Pole and back, was fighting for his life today at the Jeffrey Hale hospital here.

Dr. Alvan L. Barach, a specialist at the Presbyterian hospital who arrived here from New York with Mrs. Bennett yesterday afternoon, is pessimistic about the flier's condition. Dr. Barach said: “Mr. Bennett is a very sick man. His temperature is 103 and his pulse 124. I do not expect the crisis for two or three days.”

Mrs. Bennett was allowed to stay with her husband only for a few minutes. She kissed his hands and cried a little and then was taken to an adjoining room and put to bed. She also is ill. She is suffering from a severe case of tonsillitis.

Commander Byrd is expected here at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Men Don't Buy Own Socks, Women Do Spending Now

WASHINGTON, April 24—Men are going into the discard as money spenders and it's getting to a point where they don't even select their own socks and neckties.

Women spend about $32,000,000, or four-fifths of the money passing over retail counters of American stores every year, Julius Klein, of the commerce department, declared today.

“It seems the sheerest preposterous nonsense for mere men to intimate that he is of any retail trade consequence,” Klein said.

“No less than 85 per cent of the consumer-buying is done by women. Nor is woman buying solely occupied with things for her own adornment.

“Women purchase about 65 per-

BODY OF LOCAL MAN'S BROTHER FOUND IN WELL

Carl F. Seitz Receives Word of Tragedy At Toledo.

Carl F. Seitz, Main street music dealer, Tuesday, received word of the death of his brother, Fred Seitz, whose body was found in a well in the rear of his home at Toledo, Monday.

A verdict of accidental drowning was returned by the Toledo coroner. Seitz has suffered from dizzy spells recently, according to relatives, and is believed to have toppled into the cistern while working about it.

Fred Seitz was 69 years of age, and was born in Detroit.

He is survived by a son and two daughters. He also leaves two brothers and three sisters, Carl F. Seitz, Herman Seitz, Mrs. Kate Wagner, Mrs. Julia Hildebrand and Mrs. Charles Russow of Detroit.

Mr. Seitz will leave here Wednesday to attend the funeral, which will be held Thursday.

BREMEN MAY LEAVE TODAY FOR NEW YORK

Captain Koehl Will Pilot Plane Back To Civilization.

By CHESLEY SPURRELL (Copyright 1928 by United Press) GREENLY ISLAND LIGHTHOUSE, LABRADOR, April 24 — (By Courier to Point Amour) — Favorable flying weather spurred efforts to repair the airplane Bremen so that it could leave for Mitchell Field, L. I.—the terminus of its long flight from Berlin.

Indications last night were that the Bremen might leave today for Lake St. Agnes, Que., the first point of civilization the plane will have touched since April 12.

It was a cheering sight yesterday when the great Ford relief plane, which had been sent out of Murray Bay Sunday, glided down out of the skies carrying spruce parts, foods, clothing and a quartet of men to aid in repair work.

Major James Fitzmaurice, the Irish Free State member of the trans-Atlantic feat, had returned to join his two German companions, Baron Gunther Von Huenfeld and Captain Hermann Koehl. With him were Bernt Balchen, the pilot of the relief plane; Ernest Koepfen, Junkers mechanic, and Charles J. V. Murphy, reporter of The New York World.

Repair work started immediately. There was little time for exchange of greetings for everyone was anxious to get the Bremen under way again.

Baron Von Huenfeld is beginning to show the effects of the hazardous flight across the Atlantic and (Concluded on Page Eight)

TODAY MARKS END OF BITTER FIGHT IN STATE

Republicans Choose Between Hoover and Field While Democrats Write In Favorites.

COLUMBUS, O., April 24 — Nation wide is the interest taken in the Ohio presidential preference primaries today.

Today's election marks the termination of a strenuous pre-primary campaign, during which supporters of the late U. S. Senator Frank B. Willis and the forces backing the presidential candidacy of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover sought control of the delegation which the Buckeye state will send to the Republican national convention, at Kansas City, Mo., next June.

Ohio Democrats today are electing the delegation which will represent them at their national convention this summer at Houston, Texas. With but few exceptions, the Democratic candidate for delegates and alternates, selected by the Democratic state committees are unopposed.

Democrats and Republicans, also, are registering their preferences for president and vice president of the United States. Delegates and alternates to state conventions of these two big political parties, to be held here this summer, are being chosen at today's primaries.

Writing in Choices. In casting their presidential preference ballot, Ohio Republicans are choosing between a vote for Hoover, the late Senator Willis and Attorney Olin J. Ross, Columbus, or writing in the name of some other candidate.

No candidate having qualified, many Democrats are reported writing their presidential choices on the blank ballot presented them by election officials.

Hoover candidates united in declaring for Hoover as their first choice and James R. Garfield, Mentor, O., as their second choice for the G. O. P. presidential nomination. Garfield is a son of the late President Garfield.

Col. Carmi A. Thompson, Cleveland, who managed the Willis campaign, today stood pat on his declaration that the Willis delegates will be elected because they will “support a Republican in the national convention of the type of Lowden, Dawes, Coolidge or Hughes.”

Brown Confident.

At the same time, former Secretary of State Thad H. Brown, Columbus, manager of the Ohio campaign for Hoover, reiterated his opinion that “there is every indication that Ohioans will elect considerably more than a majority” (Concluded on Page Eight)

FEW VOTE HERE

Circleville's vote at the primaries today is extremely light. At noon the vote showed that it will be about one-eighth of the number cast at the primary, in August of 1927.

The Republican vote seems to be in the foreground. There is no contest on the Democratic ticket.

In one precinct, the north of the first ward, at noon today 19 votes had been cast. Of these 15 were Republicans and 4 Democrats. The west precinct of the first ward had 27 votes. Of these 13 were Republicans and 9 Democrats. The north precinct of the third ward had 17 votes, and the same average was noted.

If this same average runs thru the country, it will be the lightest vote ever cast at a primary election.

LOGAN GAS HEARING DELAYED TILL FRIDAY

The Public Utilities commission Monday postponed resumption of hearings in protest of the proposed increased rates for the Logan Gas Co. in various Ohio cities and communities, New York witnesses which the gas company desired to place on the stand did not arrive and the case will be resumed Friday.

This city is not affected, as council gave the gas company a franchise for five year two years ago.

RIVER RECEDING

Dr. Hartley Clarke reports that there has been two inches of rain fall since Saturday. The Scioto River, which had risen as high as 10 feet, had fallen two feet by Tuesday noon. The water so far has only been over the lower bottoms along the river.

MRS. DEARTH RITES ON WEDNESDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Walter J. Dearth will be held from the late home Wednesday afternoon at 3 p. m. Interment will be made in Forest cemetery, with the Rev. Franklin McElfresh in charge of the service.

Pallbearers will be Elmer, Harley, Clarence and Leslie Dearth, Floyd and John McRoberts.

The W. H. Albaugh company has charge of the funeral arrangements.

URGE FARMERS TO STUDY TAX PROBLEMS NOW

Pickaway County Farm Bureau Officers Back of New Plan.

Farmers and other tax payers have a better opportunity to study government expenses and find methods for reducing tax burdens this year than at any time during recent years. This opinion is held by officials of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation who are urging farmers of every taxing district to appoint committees to look into the tax situation.

Ohio's budget law, said to be one of the best in the country, has been in operation long enough so that past budgets of each taxing district are available for study now. Farmers who are complaining of burdensome taxes can well afford to study these budgets as a guide to expenditures of tax money the coming year. Under the budget law individual tax payers, or committees representing them, may have a voice in the way their tax money is spent by working with public officials in the preparation of budgets for the year.

While budgets are not made out until mid-summer, farm bureau officers in Pickaway county are being urged to name committees now to start looking over past budgets. In most communities, nearly 90 percent of the tax money is spent locally, and only careful budgeting and local economy will materially reduce individual tax bills on rural property, say farm bureau officers.

The Parent Teacher Association met in a Fathers' and Sons' meeting Thursday night in the auditorium of the K. I. S. The meeting was called to order at eight o'clock by the president, Mrs. Wyland Gardner. The first number of the program was a violin solo by Miss Vera Miller, with Miss Grace Cleveland accompanying her on the piano. After the reading of the minutes of the March meeting by the secretary, Miss Ada Merriman, the president announced the meeting of the National Convention, to be held in Cleveland in May, and urged the Association to send a delegate. Mrs. F. I. Rittenour made a speech concerning this, and urged that the president be elected to go, but no delegate was elected at this meeting. The nominating committee, of which Mrs. D. H. Dresbach was chairman, reported that the following list of names be elected officers for the coming year: President, Mrs. Helen Ellis; Vice President, Mrs. Ethel Young; Secretary, Mrs. Emma May, and Treasurer, Mr. Luke Runkle. The Association voted upon these names, and they were elected. Mr. F. M. Snyder had charge of the program, and Rev. Floyd S. Webb was the first speaker, and his subject was, "Shifting the Responsibility of Training the Child from the Home to the School." Mr. John P. Phillips of Chillicothe, was the second speaker, who talked about the difference between the old time school and customs, and the present day methods. This was followed by a speech from a Poultry Specialist, Mr. Lyman Peck, of Ohio State University. The serving committee, Mesdames G. W. McGinnis, S. C. Lightner, D. W. Kuhn and Helen Sunderland served pie and coffee to seventy-five.

Miss Gayle Dresbach and Mr. Russell Baldoser spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Peters, at Ashville, O.

Mr. Jacob Dumm and Curtis Dumm, and Misses Ruth McCollister and Virginia Lee Orr were visitors to Lancaster, O., Monday.

Millard Arledge moved his family from L. A. Pyle's house on North Main street, to Miss Martha McGee's house, on South Main street.

Mrs. John Allison of Omega, spent the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Smith and family.

Mrs. N. J. Dunlap returned Monday from a few days' visit with her sister, Mrs. Mary Russell at Fulton, Ohio. Mr. Dunlap spent Thursday and Friday at the fine Cattle Show at Cincinnati, Ohio, where the prize steer sold for thirty-five cents a pound, the top price for cattle.

Mrs. C. E. Waters of Columbus, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hohenstein and son, and Miss Daisy Pontious.

Miss Helen Ford of Columbus, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Ford.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Foster of Columbus, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foster.

Mrs. Olive Thomas of Chillicothe was a visitor Sunday at the home of Mrs. Josephine Radcliff.

Mrs. Ray Moody very delightfully entertained in honor of her husband's twenty-seventh birthday. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ira

FRUIT IS ESSENTIAL TO IDEAL BREAKFAST

Boys in the Navy Don't Get It, but They Live in the Open and Do Work that Requires Substantial Food.

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOT long ago I sat at dinner next to the Secretary of the Navy. We got to talking about the diet of the sailor boys. Observing my interest in the subject, the Secretary sent me a copy of the breakfast menu, together with the quantities of food consumed and the cost of one meal for the entire Navy and Marine Corps.

Next time you see an estimate of where the money goes that we appropriate for the Navy, you will know how a lot of it is spent. For a single breakfast there are required 18,824 dozen eggs, or 184,928 eggs, and of other foods, 52,960 tons, a total of 66.45 tons. The total cost for the one meal is $19,563.36, an estimated cost for each man of 17.32 cents.

On September 19, 1927, upon which the figures are based, the menu was as follows:
Oatmeal, with milk and sugar—two ounces of cereal and an ounce of milk.

Ham and eggs—two eggs and three ounces of meat.

Fried potatoes—three ounces.

Bread—four ounces.

Butter—one half ounce.

Coffee—one half ounce and an ounce of sugar for the cereal and coffee.

Men in the Navy are pretty active. Much of their work is real work. On this account energy producing foods are required. The standard meal provides them.

I am frank to say I would like to see the first course changed to fruit. At least it would be better for persons in civil life, who are more sedentary in their habits, to reduce the carbohydrates a bit.

One fault I have to find with the average breakfast is that it contains excessive quantities of fats, sugar and starches. The cereal is largely starch. To this you add cream and sugar.

The egg, bacon, breadstuffs, syrup or marmalade and potatoes belong to the same food group. In consequence, the fuel foods are in excess, unless you are doing hard manual labor and require them.

The Navy food program is pretty good, although I still think fruit, fresh or stewed, should begin the meal. But "the test of the pudding is in the eating," and the low sickness rate of the Navy is an evidence that the men thrive on the "grub."

I was pleased to note the enthusiasm of Secretary Wilbur over the hopes and plans of his organization. The men in command are thinking of ways and means to improve the physical welfare of the officers and men of that important branch of our national defense.

DR. COPELAND.

Answers to Health Queries

E. O. Q.—I am sixteen years old, five feet four inches tall and weigh 117 pounds. Am I underweight? How can I gain in weight?

A.—You are three pounds underweight. To gain in weight I would suggest that you eat your meals at regular hours. Add to your diet milk, cream, fresh eggs, plenty of green vegetables, fresh and stewed fruit. Make sure that your kidneys and bowels eliminate properly. Avoid excessive use of tea and coffee. Drink two or three glasses of water between meals. Exercise freely in the fresh air and practice deep breathing. Sleep as many hours as possible in a well-ventilated room. Avoid fatigue, worry and irregular habits. A good tonic would prove helpful. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Audit Discloses Shortage But, Also Host of Friends

EVERYBODY in the borough of East Newark, N. J., knows Jimmy Degnan, gassed war veteran and tax collector.

So, when an audit of the books showed a shortage, the audit must be wrong. Even if it is right, Jimmy's loyal friends are sure that he was just careless.

Besides, they are taking extraordinary measures to make up the deficit, and their minds are all made up to protect Tax Collector Degnan in June.

Degnan, now 41, is a native of Canada in a former infantry outfit. He brought home a case of gas at a battle of World War I and a bad leg, and all of which he had little time to rest. He is now a tax collector.

Degnan has a real estate business for the sale of Mrs. Jimmy Degnan's property. As a result of the audit, he has been accused of a shortage of $1,000.

The shortage was discovered by an audit of the books of the tax collector. The shortage was discovered by an audit of the books of the tax collector.

FLOODS THREATEN SOUTHERN STATES

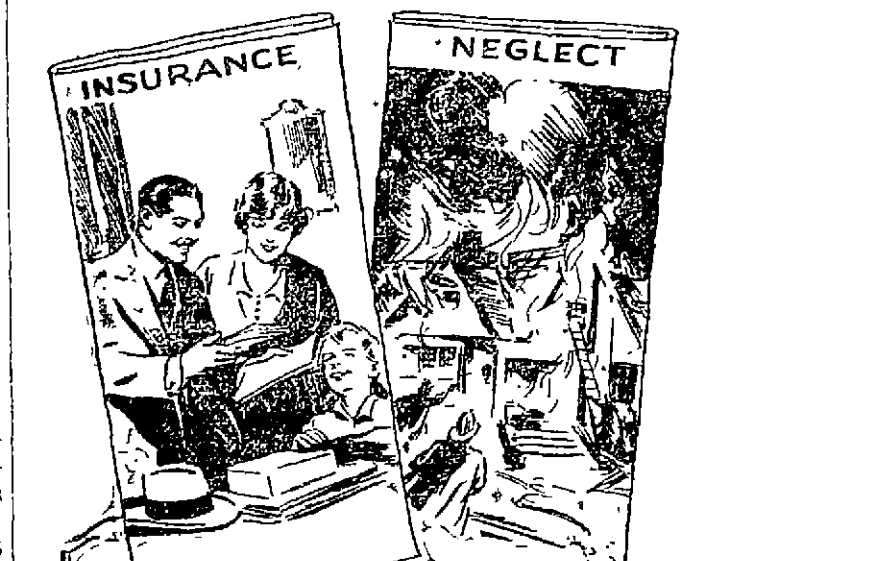

ATLANTA, GA., April 24.—Tributaries of the Mississippi today were reported in danger of overflowing, following torrential rains of the week-end which continued into yesterday.

Possibility of the south facing another devastating flood appeared. Thousands of dollars damage already has been done and there is imminent danger of a half dozen bridges leaving their banks. Highways have been flooded, bridges washed out and railroad tracks damaged in Georgia, Alabama and Florida.

Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas streams are overflowing, the latter state already having suffered great damage. Crop damage has been excessive.

Which Policy is Best?

When an insurance man comes to see you and talks his business, you may be very much inclined to grow impatient with him—not see him at all, perhaps.

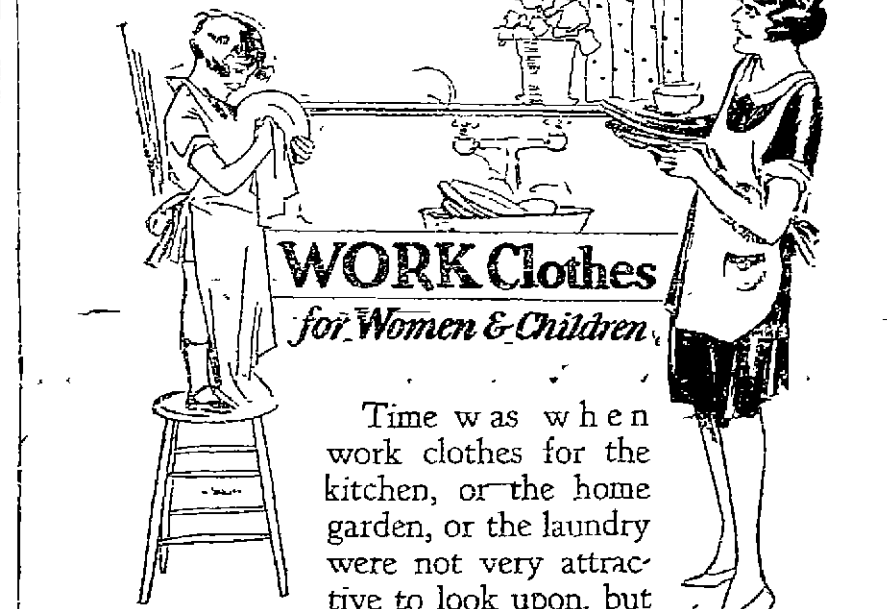

But, to an important extent, he is doing his best to safeguard you from yourself.

To do without fire insurance is as short-sighted as to do without life insurance. Indeed, insurance of all kinds is man's best protection against what he pleases to call either "fate" or "ill-luck."

URGE FARMERS TO STUDY TAX PROBLEMS NOW

Pickaway County Farm Bureau Officers Back of New Plan.

Farmers and other tax payers have a better opportunity to study government expenses and find methods for reducing tax burdens this year than at any time during recent years. This opinion is held by officials of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation who are urging farmers of every taxing district to appoint committees to look into the tax situation.

Ohio's budget law, said to be one of the best in the country, has been in operation long enough so that past budgets of each taxing district are available for study now. Farmers who are complaining of burdensome taxes can well afford to study these budgets as a guide to expenditures of tax money the coming year. Under the budget law individual tax payers, or committees representing them, may have a voice in the way their tax money is spent by working with public officials in the preparation of budgets for the year.

While budgets are not made out until mid-summer, farm bureau officers in Pickaway county are being urged to name committees now to start looking over past budgets. In most communities, nearly 90 percent of the tax money is spent locally, and only careful budgeting and local economy will materially reduce individual tax bills on rural property, say farm bureau officers.

The Parent Teacher Association met in a Fathers' and Sons' meeting Thursday night in the auditorium of the K. H. S. The meeting was called to order at eight o'clock by the president, Mrs. Wyland Gardner. The first number of the program was a violin solo by Miss Vera Miller, with Miss Grace Cleveland accompanying her on the piano. After the reading of the minutes of the March meeting by the secretary, Miss Ada Merriman, the president announced the meeting of the National Convention, to be held in Cleveland in May, and urged the Association to send a delegate. Mrs. F. L. Rittenour made a speech concerning this, and urged that the president be elected to go, but no delegate was elected at this meeting. The nominating committee, of which Mrs. D. H. Dresbach was chairman, reported that the following list of names be elected officers for the coming year: President, Mrs. Helen Ellis; Vice President, Mrs. Ethel Young; Secretary, Mrs. Emma May, and Treasurer, Mr. Luke Runkle. The Association voted upon these names, and they were elected. Mr. F. M. Snyder had charge of the program, and Rev. Floyd S. Webb was the first speaker, and his subject was, "Shifting the Responsibility of Training the Child from the Home to the School." Mr. John P. Phillips of Chillicothe, was the second speaker, who talked about the difference between the old time school and customs, and the present day methods. This was followed by a speech from a Poultry Specialist, Mr. Lyman Peck, of Ohio State University. The serving committee, Mesdames G. W. McGinnis, S. C. Lightner, D. W. Kuhn and Helen Sunderland served pie and coffee to seventy-five.

Miss Gayle Dresbach and Mr. Russell Baldoser spent the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Peters, at Ashville, O.

Mr. Jacob Dumm and Curtis Dumm, and Misses Ruth McCollister and Virginia Lee Orr were visitors to Lancaster, O., Monday.

Millard Arledge moved his family from L. A. Pyle's house on North Main street, to Miss Martha McGee's house, on South Main street.

FRUIT IS ESSENTIAL TO IDEAL BREAKFAST

Boys in the Navy Don't Get It, but They Live in the Open and Do Work that Requires Substantial Food.

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York;
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOT long ago I sat at dinner next to the Secretary of the Navy. We got to talking about the diet of the sailor boys. Observing my interest in the subject, the Secretary sent me a copy of the breakfast menu, together with the quantities of food consumed and the cost of one meal for the entire Navy and Marine Corps.

Next time you see an estimate of where the money goes that we appropriate for the Navy, you will know how a lot of it is spent. For a single breakfast there are required 18,834 dozen eggs, or 13.49 tons, and of other foods, 52.96 tons, a total of 66.45 tons. The total cost for the one meal is $19,568.36, an estimated cost for each man of 17.32 cents.

On September 19, 1927, upon which the figures are based, the menu was as follows:

Oatmeal, with milk and sugar—two ounces of cereal and an ounce of milk.

Ham and eggs—two eggs and three ounces of meat.

Fried potatoes—three ounces

Bread—four ounces.

Butter—one half ounce.

Coffee—one half ounce and an ounce of sugar for the cereal and coffee.

Men in the Navy are pretty active. Much of their work is real work. On this account energy producing foods are required. The standard meal provides them.

I am frank to say I would like to see the first course changed to fruit. At least it would be better for persons in civil life, who are more sedentary in their habits, to reduce the carbohydrates a bit.

One fault I have to find with the average breakfast is that it contains excessive quantities of fats, sugar and starches. The cereal is largely starch. To this you add cream and sugar.

The egg, bacon, breadstuffs, syrup or marmalade and potatoes belong to the same food group. In consequence, the fuel foods are in excess, unless you are doing hard manual labor and require them.

The Navy food program is pretty good, although I still think fruit, fresh or stewed, should begin the meal. But "the test of the pudding is in the eating," and the low sickness rate of the Navy is an evidence that the men thrive on the "grub."

Why Circleville Should Support Clean-Up and Paint-Up Week

There are many reasons why every one should help in this campaign. In the first place it is sanitary. This should be reason enough why every person in Circleville should enter into the spirit of Clean-Up week and support this idea. It will add much to the appearance of the city. Civic pride should be strong enough to make every one enjoy cleaning up and painting up around his home.

Spring is the season of the year when one thinks of renovation. This is the time of the year when the housewife starts in to do the house-cleaning. She appreciates the fact that this job should be to dispose of the accumulations that the winter months bring. She cleans every nook and corner, the rugs are cleaned, the draperies are cleaned, windows are again washed and many other things are done at this time.

The man of the house should get the inspiration and get busy out in the yard. Old tin cans should be hauled away as well as the ash pile. The yard should be raked and the dead grass burned. Perhaps the back fence needs fixing, or the alley gate is loose. There are many things that can be done around the yard and add to the appearance. Then too the yard that is cleaned-up is not so much as the one that was in it.

There are many reasons why every body in Circleville should jump in and help make this a successful Clean-Up, Paint-Up and Fix-Up week and it is hoped that every one will do their share in making the city have the best appearance it has had in its history. One negligent person can spoil the appearance of a whole block. Each person owes it to himself and to his neighbors to back this commendable movement to a successful conclusion.

One hundred per cent efficiency on the part of every one will do the trick.

BE A BOOSTER FOR "CLEAN-UP" WEEK IN CITY

Any town is made up of two kinds of men — the "Boosters" and the "Do-Nothings". The former class must shoulder all responsibility for the growth and necessary progress of the community. They do more than their share, which is not quite just, do you think?

Mr. "Do-Nothing's" creed is "Let well enough alone. Costs too much money to be Cleaning-Up and Painting-Up all the while. Let the other chap do it—I'm busy earning a living."

Mr. Booster says: "I want my town to grow and be popular. It can't do either if it is a neglected town, with shabby unpainted houses and down-at-the-heel gardens and grounds. My own home and my place of business will be kept always in perfect repair, even though it may mean personal denial in some other way. By doing this I help myself by helping my city."

Which man has the right idea?

Probably You Are To Blame; Burn Up Trash

You not only endanger your own life and property, but the homes and lives of your neighbors when you yield to neglect in the matter of cleaning up trash and fire traps which so sure collect around the home if you are not on guard every moment.

The only way to go about it is to tackle the job with your sleeves rolled up and a grim determination not to stop until the house and grounds are absolutely clear

YES, SIR, THIS IS OUR CLEANUP

Faces to the right, Eyes bright! Now for the "Clean-Up and Paint-Up" Drill! With this army on the battle line, in every home in the community, there need be no fear of not conquering that arch enemy, "Neglect."

Teach children not to play with matches—be careful of bonfires, clean out rubbish from old boxes and cans from beneath basements. Everything inflammable should go—and go quickly. The annual loss from avoidable fires in America is appalling. You would scarcely believe the figures if they were set down. But they are inexorably true, none the less. Do your share to cut down that deadly mass of fire statistics.

We all like to ex-empt ourselves as regards the enormous losses from fire. In our own cases, it seems to us that there is a safe casual fire loss with an adequate fire fighting force to conquer the fire out of ten fires. A pretty home burns down along the street and we deplore it, but never quite manage to treat the subject as serious as it deserves. In the aggregate, however, a year's loss from fire in this country totals to an enormous and unbelievable figure. In more care were taken, these fire figures could, of course, be decreased. In the meanwhile, there is just one thing to do—take out fire insurance as a matter of self-preservation!

Why Circleville Should Support Clean-Up and Paint-Up Week

There are many reasons why every one should help in this campaign. In the first place it is sanitary. This should be reason enough why every person in Circleville should enter into the spirit of Clean-Up week and support this idea. It will add much to the appearance of the city. Civic pride should be strong enough to make every one enjoy cleaning up and painting up around his home.

Spring is the season of the year when one thinks of renovation. This is the time of the year when the housewife starts in to do the house-cleaning. She appreciates the fact that this job should be disposed of the accumulations that the winter months bring. She cleans every nook and corner. The rugs are cleaned, the draperies are cleaned, windows are again washed and many other things are done at this time.

The man of the house should get the inspiration and get busy out in the yard. Old tin cans should be hauled away as well as the ash pile. The yard should be raked and the dead grass burned. Perhaps the back fence needs fixing, or the alley gate is loose. There are many things that can be done around the yard and add to the appearance. Then too, the yard that is cleaned-up is not so much as the one that has in it.

There are many reasons why every body in Circleville should jump in and help make this a successful Clean-Up, Paint-Up and Fix-Up week, and it is hoped that every one will do their share in making the city have the best appearance it has had in its history. One negligent person can spoil the appearance of a whole block. Each person owes it to himself and to his neighbors to back this commendable movement to a successful conclusion.

The Rainbow's end has been reached when a community really determines to do everything in its power to create the "City Beautiful." Each and every citizen must agree to do his share; otherwise complete success is out of the question. And the rainbow is a symbol of rich promise. Color plays a highly important part in modern life—every color of the rainbow. Interiors of homes are fancifully bright—there is more leeway in the exterior painting of buildings.

VOTING AT THE PRIMARIES

A usual thing the vote at the primaries held to nominate political candidates, falls far short of the vote at elections. Probably it will prove so in the series of primaries now being held in the 48 states, to nominate presidential convention delegates. The American people have a cheerful habit of letting George do it.

There are many reasons why everyone who could qualify to vote should take part in these primaries:

1. It is the duty we owe to our country. Our fathers handed on a noble plan of government to us, which on the whole gives more welfare than can be found anywhere else in the world. But it has many defects, and comes far short of the ideal. It seems rather mean and unappreciative not to do our share of making it what the founders of the government intended.

2. Only by the personal attention of the people or most of them, can the government be made efficient. If the owners of a business neglect it, they can not expect it will continue successful, and probably it will go into bankruptcy. The public business also needs close attention from its owners, the people, or it too will fall far short of success.

3. The primary elections are as important as the final election in November, and frequently more important. The party that gets its vote out to the primaries, and that brings the full conscience and intelligence of its members to bear on the question of making nominations, will probably select the best ticket, and that party should win the election.

If people want small groups of politicians and bosses and machines to run this country, the way to accomplish that end is to stay away from the primaries, here in Ohio and everywhere else.

MARRIED WOMEN WORKING

YOU still hear, now and then, repetitions of the arguments that raged so furiously a few years ago—whether or not married women should work outside the home.

Now Miss Mary Anderson, head of the Women's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor, announces that there are 2,000,000 married women gainfully employed in the United States. Furthermore, she asserts that all but a very few of them are working because they have to and not because they want to.

Very few women choose to carry two jobs for the pleasure of doing it," says Miss Anderson. "Only about two percent of the employed married women work for luxuries or a career."

One concludes that the issue isn't a very live one, after all. Most women, when they get married, prefer to stay at home, unless financial conditions compel them to go to work. That, at least, is what one infers from Miss Anderson's statement.

HOW ABOUT FATTY ARBUCKLE?

THE newspapers of this land are, ordinarily, energetic and shrewd. But it seems to us that they have overlooked one bet lately.

Will Hays, who labors to keep our movies clean and honorable, recently came before the public eye because of certain transactions with Harry Sinclair, the noted briber of cabinet officers. The newspapers printed much about this, and got the comment thereon of many distinguished and sapient people. But, as we say, they overlooked one bet.

Nobody thought to get the opinion of Fatty Arbuckle, whom Mr. Hays once pitched out of the movies because of moral turpitude. Mr. Arbuckle's remarks should be pungent and informative.

THE RACE

THE race of Man
Goes marching by,
And some there
Are
Who nod,
A friendly smile
While others
Sigh
Their eyes upon the Sod;
And some see waving,
Happy flowers
That dot life's
Broad highway
And they improve
Their earthly Hours
Most of the entire Day,
They hear a bird
That sings its song
From some new budding
Tree,
The babbling brook
That flows along Fills their Big heart
With glee—
But others walk a
Sordid lane,
And see the misery
There,
And all their life
Is filled with Pain
And melancholy
Care—

And what we mean to say
Is,
You see a flower
Or find a thorn,
Depending how you look,
For each new day
There's something born—
A man's a prince
Or crook
Just in the way you
Look at him,
And if you find the Sky
Smiles down at you,
Your heart with
Vim
Somehow won't care
To die.

Dolores Costello in "OLD SAN FRANCISCO" is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Don Hernandez Vasquez and his beautiful granddaughter Dolores occupy the old Vasquez ranch overlooking San Francisco that was originally granted to the first Vasquez by the King of Spain. The prosperity that came to San Francisco by the discovery of gold passed by the Vasquez ranch where indolent ways did not keep abreast of modern progress. But the Vasquez acres are coveted by Bucknell, San Francisco's political boss, and his lawyer, Brandon, with Brandon's nephew, Terry, are sent to the ranch with an offer to buy it. Brandon fails to accomplish his task, but Terry falls in love with Dolores.

"It is red, señor!" Dolores' tone implied, "it is forbidden."
"I know—I like red." His hand was below hers, holding the stem. "But a Vasquez gives a red rose only to the man she loves." There was no coquetry in her remark.
"Then I must win it from you—please—I want it, because I—"
Terry choked and could not finish. He had spoken very softly as if afraid of his own boldness. He watched her breathlessly.
"Without knowing why she obeyed, Dolores let go of the stem and the red rose of love was in Terry's possession!
The spirit of youth enveloped Dolores and the stranger friend who in a few short moments had become something more. A glorious, elusive veil of Romance seemed to settle around their throbbing hearts and made them strangely happy and contented in the old Spanish patio.
Back in the living room Brandon had not made the desired progress with Vasquez. He puffed disgust.

"You simply can't refuse to sell at that price."

edly on his cigar for a moment, then drew a paper from a deep breast pocket, opened it with a flourish and leaning far over the table passed it on for Vasquez's inspection. His manner was that of an aggressive business man closing a big deal. He was confident that the figures representing the offer would be accepted immediately.
"It is an enormous price, far more than the place is worth, but my client is generous when he wants anything," lied Brandon. "Will you sign now?"

Vasquez had listened intently from the beginning, although his attitude remained stiff and unbending. He needed the money, yet the place meant so much to him; also he felt that it would belie a trust to dispose of his ancestral holdings. He did not know what to say; perhaps it is just as well he did not attempt speech because he was almost overcome with suppressed emotion and a lump was in his throat.

"Why, you simply can't refuse to sell at that price," thundered Brandon, banging his fist on the table.

"It's ridiculous!"
Vasquez's brows puckered in annoyance. Brandon's manner irritated him more than the proposition and he looked away from the scrutinizing eyes that were trying so hard to hold his attention. The room was filled with pleasant old memories. It would be hard to give up everything he had cherished just for the sake of money, yet with Dolores to be provided for he must not think of himself. He shook his head sadly, regretting all that he would lose and miss.

Brandon mistook the motion for a refusal to sell. His lips tightened grimly and a nasty look came into his eyes. "I know you're broke, Vasquez, and I also know you're only holding out from damned stubborn pride."

A quick intake of breath, almost like a sob, escaped Vasquez's lips, but he did not speak. His eyes glittered at such coarse familiarity to a stranger.

"It won't do you any good to refuse this offer," continued Brandon, "applying the paper significantly. "If you do you'll lose the place anyhow. The man I represent is influential enough to have your old land grants declared invalid. Better sell now and be done with it."

Vasquez was speechless with rage. He looked upon Brandon's threat as a challenge. A moment before he would have sold for Dolores' sake, but after Brandon's insult he could not sell without loss of pride. With a mighty effort, he mastered his feelings, arose and drew himself up to his full height. He looked down upon Brandon.

"He who seeks to intimidate a Vasquez is either a stranger in this land or a fool!" he stated proudly. "You may tell your client that I will never sell at any price."

Without waiting for the lawyer's bewilderment to permit a reply he pulled the bell rope, summoning his servant.

"Your hat, señor!" he said with a decided air of finality.
Brandon realized that he had been dismissed. With a rude jerk he accepted his hat from the servant and scowling furiously stormed out into the patio.

"Very well, señor," he called back tauntingly. "You refuse to sell your broken down ranch, so we shall proceed to take it! Come Terrance!" he commanded as he saw Terry sitting beside the pool with Dolores, "we're leaving."

Reluctantly the young man followed his uncle to the carriage. Before stepping in he looked back at Dolores. "Wonderful!" he exclaimed rapturously.
"Wonderful, hell!" ejaculated Brandon, sitting down angrily, "he's an old fool!"

Terry sighed and pressed his hand against a moist red rose bud that was perfuming his breast pocket. His uncle never seemed to understand.

The carriage rolled away but Terry did not forget to look back for a last glimpse of Dolores as she stood beside her Grandfather. Brandon was not at all concerned with Terry's thoughts being centered on the young girl of the rancho, nor did he bother to recall that although they had not been introduced they were sitting together beside the fountain, very much absorbed in each other when he came out from his aunt's study interview. The incident made no impression on Brandon because it had nothing to do with money. He was already mentally preparing a report for his chief, in which Vasquez was to be described as a "blithering idiot."

Close to the hacienda, Vasquez and Dolores watched the departing carriage. Their thoughts were as far apart as is possible for two people who are so fond of each other.
"Bah, what a swine," breathed Vasquez in a cold voice through stern set lips. "I feel that the hacienda has been defiled by his presence."

Aroused from her own pleasant thoughts Dolores looked at her Grandfather. She was hurt and surprised by his remark. "But he—Oh!" as it dawned on her whom he meant, "but, Granddaddy, the young señor was quite nice."

Fortunately Vasquez did not even hear. He was thinking of Brandon's threat. His fighting blood had been aroused and he determined not to give in. Squaring slender shoulders he stalked away to plan what would be the best procedure when the unknown grafter tried to take his beloved rancho away from him, the last male descendant of the Vasquez line either in Spain or America.

Dolores looked down the road until the last cloud of dust from Terry's carriage had scattered in the air. Her luscious full lips were curled in a gentle smile. She was sure that he would come again and blushed modestly at her own boldness in wishing that it would be very soon.

CHAPTER IV

The Czar of the Tenderloin
San Francisco's Chinatown was an acute and growing problem to certain of the city bosses. Its ever increasing prosperity was a golden river of privilege money constantly flowing into the pockets of the political ring, but its six tong rulers were a decided menace to their peace of mind. Their wealth and power were a factor to be feared.

Of all the bosses who waxed fat and prosperous from the privilege pickings Chris Buckwell—the Czar of the Tenderloin—was the greediest and most cruel. He had risen from obscurity to the very pinnacle of power and as the leader of San Francisco's political ring and king of the underworld, was ruthless in his persecution of the Chinese.

Picture if you can a person, a stocky, heavy shouldered, with a forehead like a Greek bard and a face like Mephistopheles and long, magnetic eyes of piercing blackness. Imbue this man with all the cunning of the East and the sophistication of the West in a shrewd intellect and you have a fairly accurate mental picture of Chris Buckwell.

CO-OPERATIVE LIVESTOCK IS ON BOOM IN OHIO

Associations of State Show Business Increase, Bureau Here States.

Cooperative livestock marketing associations of Ohio counties showed a material increase in volume for the first three months of this year over 1927, according to figures received at the office of the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. The gain, greatest in January and February and substantial in March, averages 21 per cent over the same three months' period of 1927.

Not only have county associations shown material gains, but farmer-owned commission associations operating cooperatively on the Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Cincinnati markets, and drawing a large volume of Ohio livestock have handled the largest volumes during this period since their establishment, reports of the Ohio Livestock Cooperative Association show. During the week ending April 14, these four firms handled 328 decks of stock or 26 per cent of the total volume coming to these four markets. This is the highest record ever made by the farmers' own marketing associations, say farm bureau officials. One of the four, that at Cincinnati showed a net gain of 115.2 per cent in volume during that week.

Leading counties in cooperative livestock marketing during March were Franklin, Hardin, Pickaway, Putnam, Logan and Wyandot. March shipments of the livestock cooperatives showed a gain of 269,379 pounds over the same month last year.

Begins Plans for Poppy Day

At the regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary, in the Post Room at Memorial Hall Monday night, arrangements were completed for the making of the poppies which are to be sold on Poppy Day.

This date has not been definitely decided upon, but will be announced later. The money obtained from the sale of these little flowers, which the members of the Auxiliary to the Legion all over the United States make, is used exclusively for assistance to ex-service men or their families.

The local unit has been very busy during the past year and are much in need of funds to continue the good work. Mrs. A. W. Holman is child welfare chairman and it is under her care that all these cases are now handled, and at the meeting Monday night she gave a report of her finances and also told of a family whom she had been helping and who had now been helped from her charge. She also reported of another case that has been under the care of the Auxiliary for some time and who is now being aided materially from the Government.

The members of the Auxiliary will meet at the home of the president, Mrs. Abram A. Parrett, 214 East Main street, several nights a week during the next few weeks and will make the poppies. It is hoped that as many members as possible will assist in this work.

W. C. T. U. TO HOLD

PICKAWAY FARM
AGENT AND BOYS
AT STOCK SHOW

Ralph Bolender of Wayne township, John Graffis and Thomas Heffner of Washington township, pig club boys who finished a litter of pigs in the marketing class last year went with County Agent Lewis to the Fat Stock Show at Cincinnati.

Franklin Baum Harrison township, another member of this marketing pig group did not get to make the trip on account of an accident.

The group was entertained by the Producers' Commission Association at Cincinnati. This organization showed how livestock was handled from the time it was received in the yards until it was sold out to the killers. The records kept were explained to the boys, giving them a complete picture of all transactions.

A tour through the Kahn Packing Company plant gave the boys a picture of the manner in which finished grades of livestock finally reach the consuming public. The Kahn Packing Company plant adds capacity of thirty hogs per hour; 600 cattle per day and around 1100-1200 veal calves per day. The company is equipped with the most modern machinery available for this type of work and everything moves very systematically through the plant from the killing floors to the packing and labelling rooms. After the livestock leaves the killing floors it is under refrigeration until it leaves the plant.

The last place of interest was a visit through the Otto-Grau Piano Company, plant which manufactures and sells musical instruments of the highest type. The boys were entertained in the studios of this company by some of the artists.

On Friday morning the boys attended the Fat Stock Show and sale. There were about 800 cattle that went through this sale. Following the sale the boys visited the Cincinnati Zoo, which is one of the best stocked zoos in the United States. The group returned to Circleville Friday evening.

To Be Given by Lutheran Choir

"THE Miniature Lady," an interesting. A group of young folks of which Polly and Molly are the leaders, are planning means of raising money for a children's hospital. Upon the suggestion of Polly's aunt, they decided to have an old-fashioned bazaar.

The plot develops from a feature of the entertainment in which a miniature of an old fashioned lady plays an important part. The miniature finally proves to be a most charming modern young lady.

The second act presents the final rehearsal of the bazaar. The costumes are beautiful in the quaint styles of long ago.

The characters are charming and youthful, and the scenes will be laid in delightful backgrounds. With the wealth of talent under the capable direction of Mrs. Moffitt and Miss Heffner, this production promises to be worth-while.

The list of characters includes Miss Helen Crist as Mrs. Jerome Hastings, a quite pompous person; Carl Leist as Allan Hastings, her son; Miss Grace Bower as Polly, her motherless niece; Harland Gehres as Major Richard Ross; Miss Priscilla Trimmer as Miss Jacqueline Jones, Mrs. Hastings' secretary; Miss Eleanor Fitzpatrick, as Rosie the cook; Luther Bower as the gardener; Miss Ellen Leist as Polly's best friend; Charles Walters and Gladden Troutman as Ted and Tad, allies of Molly and Polly, and Miss Ida Walters as Miss Lily Hart, still hopeful of ensnaring the man of her choice. There are also choruses of boys and girls—friends of Polly.

In return the Babe is a great Lloyd enthusiast. That is the only reason he agreed to work with the comedian in "Speedy." The Babe has a select bit to perform in the spectacular comic's new offering, and he did it mighty well, too. Lloyd is the proud possessor of the bat with which Ruth made his record drive. Babe presented it to him directly after he had lammed it for the loop.

"LES MISERABLES"

"Les Miserables," which opens up at the Grand theatre to-night and continues through Wednesday night is one of the greatest pictures of all time.

It took a cast of 5,000 people to make this sterling masterpiece, which has over 600 gigantic scenes. The mighty-ave-inspiring spectacle of the French Revolution can't help but stir you. Then the giant Jean Valjean in a soul-stirring struggle against terrible odds fighting inch by inch, breathless and adoring, with this unconquerable hero who carved his own destiny in the teeth of misfortune, you can't help but thrill from beginning to end.

It's bound to be one of the best pictures the Grand has ever screened this year.

Menus

Breakfast — Stewed prunes, cereal, cream, broiled cottage ham, creamed potatoes, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Lima bean loaf, apple and raisin salad, plain cookies, milk tea.

Dinner — Baked spaghetti and veal, head lettuce with Thousand Island dressing, stuffed figs with whipped cream, sponge cake, milk, coffee.

Lima Bean Loaf

One cup dried lima beans, 1 large onion, 2 tablespoons melted bacon fat, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, 1-2 teaspoon salt.

Soak beans over night in water to cover after thorough washing. In the morning cook in the water in which they soaked, until tender and quite soft. Add water as necessary to prevent sticking. Drain and rub beans through a sieve. Add onion minced, bacon fat, salt and paprika. Mix well and pack into a well buttered brick-shaped pan. Bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven. Turn out on a hot platter and garnish with slices of hard cooked eggs sprinkled with minced parsley. Serve with medium white sauce to which 1-4 to 1-2 cup grated cheese has been added.

"LES MISERABLES"

"Les Miserables," which opens up at the Grand theatre to-night and continues through Wednesday night is one of the greatest pictures of all time.

It took a cast of 5,000 people to make this sterling masterpiece, which has over 600 gigantic scenes. The mighty-awe-inspiring spectacle of the French Revolution can't help but stir you. Then the giant Jean Valjean in a soul-stirring struggle against terrible odds. Fighting inch by inch, breathless and admiring, with this unconquerable hero who carved his own destiny in the teeth of misfortune, you can't help but thrill from beginning to end.

It's bound to be one of the best pictures the Grand has ever screened this year.

WEST POINT AND ILLINOIS PLAN TWO GRID BATTLES

SOLDIERS WILL PLAY 1929 GAME ON WEST FIELD

Exact Dates of Engagements Will Not Be Settled Until Later.

WEST POINT, N. Y., April 24 — West Point and the University of Illinois will play home-and-home football games in 1929 and 1930, it was stated officially at the United States Military Academy today. The 1929 game will be played in the stadium of the University of Illinois and the 1930 game either at West Point or in New York City.

Both games will be played in November. The exact dates will not be set until later.

The scheduling of these important games for November dates with games already tentatively arranged will give West Point strenuous schedules for 1929 and 1930. The 1929 game will be the first meeting West Point has had with a big Ten Conference team since West Point defeated Chicago at West Point in 1903 by a 10 to 6 score. The 1929 game also will be the first in which West Point has played an intersectional opponent in the west.

FRANK GETTY
WRITER, BOSTON, MASS.

Tommy Armour has gone to England to prepare to combat Walter Hagen and the field in the British open golf championship. If Tommy plays the golf he showed at Clontarf last summer, the British title may be between him and "Old Walter," much to the disgust of the natives.

When Bobby Jones announced that he would not defend the title he won at St. Andrews, a sigh of relief went up throughout the British nation. It was felt that some British pro, (none of the amateurs being considered sufficiently strong) might win back the coveted cup.

Hagen, of course, presents nearly as serious a threat as Bobby, but he is not feared as much as the Georgia youth. Now Armour, winner of the American open and a number of other important championships in 1927, presents an added threat to the pride in British golf.

It was at Sandwich, where the British open will be contested this year, that Walter Hagen won his first British title. The seaside course, usually swept by high winds, presents innumerable difficulties to free swingers, but it was there that Hagen stood the field on its head in 1927.

This year, there will be strong British representation to oppose Walter and Tommy. The long driving Ted Ray, the dour "Black Seal," George Duncan, the imperious Aubrey Boomer, the deadly Abe Mitchell and the veteran J. H. Taylor will be at St. George's, striving to re-establish British golfing prestige.

Armour had for a time decided to pass up a try at the British open title. Then he suddenly decided to go. He and Hagen will engage in a series of exhibition matches against Abe Mitchell and George Duncan by way of becoming acclimated.

Meanwhile, the American pros are figuring that Bobby Jones is quite likely to walk away with the American open championship at Olympia Fields this summer. The Atlanta will, of course, be an overwhelming favorite in the amateur championship, which will be contested at Brimfield, but this is no concern of the professionals. What they fear is that Bobby will have one of his good weeks at Chicago, in which case no one will be within six strokes of him in the open.

Jones' performance at Minneapolis in the 1927 amateur championship has not been surpassed in this country. Nor has the golf he played at St. Andrews in annexing the British open title. Golf of either variety would be too much for the pros at Olympia Fields.

Johnny Farrell, the smiling, dark-eyed young New Yorker, who has many times come close, but never quite close enough, might find himself this year. Johnny has established a great record, world's record, in fact, for competitive golf within the past twelve months.

Gene Sarazen, winner of the $15,000 Miami Beach tournament, can always be counted upon to be up among the leaders when "money golf" is called for, and Macdonald Smith, "unlucky Mac," is long overdue. Hagen and Armour, presumably, will return for the championship test at Chicago, so Jones' path to another open title will be no easy one.

Bobby has given more attention to business than to golf this year, but he will be polishing up his strokes when the big days of summer arrive, and he may be all the more dangerous for not being over-golfed.

DISCARDS KEEP BROWNS IN RACE

NEW YORK, April 24 — Dan Howley, genial pilot of the St. Louis Browns, is one of those geniuses who can shuffle the discards of a poker deck and deal himself a winning layout. No less than six of the nine St. Louis players who handed Cleveland a 4 to 2 trimming yesterday were discarded by other Major League clubs. They are McNeely, G. Rourke, Manush, Blue, Schang and Gray.

Supported by Kress and Brannon, the rookie keystone combination and Schulte, a second year man, these veterans are keeping the Browns in the race. Gray, who once won something like ten straight games for Connie Mack, already has turned in three victories this season.

SEED CORN IN OHIO SELLING TO LAST EAR

That is, the Certified Kind of Corn, Survey Plainly Indicates.

Ohio's 1928 supply of certified seed corn will, it seems, be sold to the last ear by the time corn-planting time comes. Eighty members of the Ohio Seed Improvement Association this year produced a total of approximately 10,000 bushels of certified seed corn, more than ever before produced.

On April 10 a considerable number of these men reported to the secretary of the association that they had sold about half of their seed corn. Some had sold out. All reported that the sale of seed had been started. It is probable that the warm days the first week of April started corn growers to thinking of seed corn and stimulated the demand at about that time.

Only a small fraction of the corn land of the state will be planted with certified seed. It requires some 500,000 bushels of seed corn for Ohio. This year, in the opinion of Wallace E. Hanger, crops specialist of the Ohio State University, the farmer should pay more attention to the quality of his seed corn than ever before, because of the comparatively low germination ability of the corn selected from the 1927 crop.

Seed corn prices for the certified seed are about the same as they were last year, Hanger says. One bushel of seed corn, which will sell for about $7, is enough to plant at least six acres of corn.

It's the money you spend wisely that counts

Someone has said that a rich man has more fun keeping a budget than a man of moderate means. Because the money he saves is tangible, he can see it and invest it, and put it to work. Be that as it may, a budget is an invaluable to help to anyone.

A budget helps you keep the right proportions between expenses, prevents you from spending more than is best for food and rent, or crimping more than you should on entertainment and luxury. But a budget is not a reason for getting cheap things, things in which you forfeit quality by attempting to save on price. A budget says to you: "Here is the amount of money you spend for this. Spend all of it, but don't spend more." And it is up to you to get the best that can be got for that amount.

The person who spends his money wisely, who likes to get the utmost for it, always finds out from the advertisements how he can spend it to the best advantage.

It is surprising how much more wisely you can buy if you make it a habit to read the advertising. A little more value here . . . a little better workmanship there . . . in this thing slightly more durability . . . that product perhaps a bit finer. And every cent of money you spend for advertised merchandise will bring you greater comfort, a higher quality of goods, and a standard of excellence that is nationally recognized.

It certainly pays to read the advertisements

HOLD TWO WOMEN AND MAN IN MURDER OF DETECTIVE

Hear Newark Was Killed
For Failure To Deliver
As "Fixer."

CHICAGO, April 24 — Admitting that any one of Ben Newman's numerous shady activities might have paved the way for his assassination, authorities today faced a complex situation in trying to unravel a maze of circumstantial evidence that might or might not lead to the actual slayer.

Newmark, alleged "fixer" politician and detective, former special investigator for State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, was shot to death yesterday in the bedroom of his bungalow by a mysterious assassin who fired a shotgun through the window.

Two women and a man, whose names were found in Newman's little red memorandum book, are being held at the detective bureau, and other suspects are under surveillance. Two other men had been arrested but were released when police became convinced they had no connection with the crime.

Those under arrest are, Miss Cecelia McGee, 23, Miss Susan Gere, 23, and Tony Ferraro, 26. The women are friends, and Ferraro is said to be the sweetheart of Miss Gere.

With the arrest of this trio, investigators were able to evolve their first definite theory as to a probable motive for Newman's assassination. According to this theory, the politician was slain, because he had extorted money as a "fixer" and then failed to deliver.

From the women it was learned that Ferraro was facing prosecution under the Dyer act for alleged theft of an automobile in New Jersey. Miss Gere, his reputed sweetheart, is said to have appealed to Miss McGee, a "special friend" of Newman.

WEATHER HOLDS CAPT. WILKINS AT SPITZBERGEN

Man Who Flew Over Pole
May Not Leave Until
Middle of May.

OSLO, NORWAY, April 24 — While the world lauds their remarkable flight over the "top of the world," Captain George H. Wilkins and Capt. Ben Eielson seem doomed today to remain at Green Harbor, Spitzbergen, until warm weather sets in.

In landing on the ice at Green Harbor after the short hop from Doedmansoer (Dead Man's Island), where for five days they were isolated from the world by a snow storm of terrific proportions, the fliers' Lockheed-Vega monoplane was slightly damaged.

The damage to their plane is not believed to have been serious but reports from Green Harbor indicate that the daring aviators were unable to make repairs with the materials at their disposal. It is also believed that the fliers could not procure sufficient fuel for the hop to this city, even if they could repair the plane.

Spitzbergen, the ice-bound isle which is farther north than any other in Europe, cannot be reached by shipping. It is not likely that any craft will be able to negotiate the icy seas surrounding it until the middle of May. The fliers, therefore, will probably have to wait until then to get back to civilization.

There had been plans afoot to have General Umberto Nobile's dirigible Italia, which is coming to Spitzbergen on the next hop of its Polar flight, bring a quantity of gasoline to Captain Wilkins and his companion. It is not known whether this plan will be followed in view of the fact that the plane is damaged.

It is probable that General Nobile and Captain Wilkins will meet at Spitzbergen. The Italia is coming to Kings Bay, which is only about five miles away from Green Harbor. Wilkins has indicated, according to reports reaching here, that he would like to give the Italian dirigible commander the benefit of some of the observations he made on his 2,200 mile flight from Point Barrow, Alaska.

MILLER BEGINS HIS TERM IN ATLANTA PEN

Former Government Official
Was Convicted of Conspiracy.

WASHINGTON, April 24 — Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, ex-member of congress and overseas World war veteran, was speeding to Atlanta today to begin service of an 18-months sentence in the federal penitentiary.

Miller passed through Washington last night and is due at the prison this afternoon.

Miller declined to discuss his conviction with reporters, except to say that a mandate of the supreme court must be obeyed and there was no reason for him to put off the beginning of his sentence to the last minute of grace allowed by law.

Miller was convicted of conspiracy to deprive the government of his honest services as an official in connection with the release of $7,000,000 of assets of the American Metals Co. a Swiss corporation of German ownership to the German owners. It was alleged that $390,000 was paid the conspirators to accomplish this release.

The former custodian was jointly indicted and twice tried with former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty. The first hearing resulted in a mistrial for both. On the second Daugherty was acquitted and Miller convicted.

TODAY MARKS END OF BITTER FIGHT IN STATE

of the candidates pledged to support Herbert Hoover and that an "overwhelming lead" will be "rolled up" for Hoover in the presidential preference contest.

The presidential preference votes cast in Ohio today merely provide for a registration of the popular sentiment prevailing in the Buckeye state. The outcome of this contest has no direct effect upon the balloting for national convention delegates and alternates.

The Ohio delegation to the Democratic national convention will comprise eight delegates-at-large and two delegates from each of the state's 22 congressional districts. This delegation of 32 delegates and the same number of alternates, will be entitled to 45 each, and the 44 district delegates at-large being given a half-vote each, and the 44 district delegates one vote apiece.

Pomerene and White Democratic candidates designated former U. S. Senator Alice Pomerene, Cleveland, and George White, Marietta, former Democratic national committeeman from Ohio, as their first and second choices, respectively, for the presidency.

With weather conditions favorable, Willie forces are expecting effective support at the polls in the rural districts. Hoover forces are anticipating rolling up a big vote in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Toledo and other industrial centers.

Two Fair Conspirators Play a Trick on Dicky Graham.

M Y LITTLE maid's face darkened with disappointment as I told her I could not spare her to go to the movies, and her lips began to tremble. Lillian averted a burst of tears just in time.

"It's because I need you to do some detective work for me, Katie," she said, carefully and tactfully eliminating me from the investigation of Jim's errand from Dicky which we suspected.

Jim's temperamental little wife winked back her tears and her face beamed. No movie in the world had a chance against that "allure" with my little maid.

"Sure! I do anything you want," she said, and Lillian lowered her voice impressively.

"It's like this, Katie," she said. "You know that Mr. Graham knows that red-headed man in the shack?"

Katie tossed her head. "Who tell Meesie Graham dot first?" she demanded with unconscious impudence, for which just now we were in no position to reproach her.

"But I am sure Mr. Graham does not know the real character of the man," Lillian went on smoothly, "and as I have just received some information concerning them, there is something I must ask you to find out. You understand, do you not, that ordinarily, I would not ask you to watch your husband, when he is doing anything for Mr. Graham, but tonight it is absolutely necessary that I find out whether Mr. Graham has sent a message to the red-headed man by Jim."

"Well, eat anything dot Jeem mixed oop in," Katie asserted with a tinge of good-natured contempt for her husband's mentality which made my hands twitch to shake her. "I find out greck as little sheep shake bees tail."

Out of the corner of her eye Lillian flashed me an appreciative recognition of Katie's never-failing smile. Then she looked at the girl squarely.

"Here is the thing I wish to know," she said slowly and distinctly. "Tonight Jim came back from the station and drove directly up the hill."

"I know," Katie tossed her head. "Sooch a fool ting to do. I watch hem and I see you go after hem."

"It's rather a low-down trick to play on the Dicky-bird," Lillian said when we had returned to sober consideration of the problem before us. "But I'd stake my life that one of the men in that shack is a devil. Your darling husband isn't exactly a fool so he must know the same thing. He probably has some good reason for concerning with one of them, but it isn't exactly chummy to keep us in the dark about it. World Champion Corn Grower Is Helped By Lad

MARION, O., April 24—If Ira Marshall, Hardin County's world champion corn grower, succeeds in making two stalks of corn grow where but one grew before and thereby sets a new record this year, he will owe much of his success to the care and patience taken by a Marion county boy.

For three years the Harding county corn grower has held the world's record and this year he will attempt to surpass his largest yield of 168.4 bushels per acre by using certified Clarence seed corn grown by Walter Disbennett, 18, living five miles south of Marion. Marshall recently purchased seven bushels of the seed corn from the 18-year-old farm youth, and is making plans for the sowing of his 1928 crop as soon as the weather conditions permit.

Young Disbennett is a former Hardin County boy, having graduated from Kenton High School. At Kenton he was enrolled in the Vocational Agriculture Department of the school, receiving training in the most practical and up-to-date methods of farming under the instruction of E. R. Tam and W. M. Stuart, heads of the department. After graduation he moved with his parents to their present home south of Marion where he started the growing of certified Clarence seed corn with splendid results. According to tests completed at Kenton and by the Ohio Seed Improvement Association his corn is rated among the best corn in Ohio this year.

Let there be temperance in all things. Eating, drinking and thinking. No law can hold in check the evil forces striving for the mastery of man. The principal which will prevail must come from within, outside influences are important but not permanent.

The intemperance which now dominates all departments of our public and private lives as a people must be made undesirable.

The great moral questions can not be forcibly answered—people must be educated up to them. This is a work of time and patience.

At one time, within the memory of some of us now living—it was considered part of a gentleman's career that he drink with his friends. It was very unimportant that in so doing he squandered his substance in riotous living.

In those days a favorite cure for colic in infants was a sip of hot toddy.

The prevalent idea that one must go with "the crowd" led many a youth to ruin.

The same idea holds good as to the popular literature of the day. Tell a crowd of sweet young girls that a certain book is "bad," and ninety percent of them will get the book by some means and read it to see if it is so bad. But inculcate within those same girls the habit of pure thought, high ideals and clean living—lead them to the hilltop where they may view the promised land and they will lose their taste for the vile and unclean, and of their own free will choose those things that are of good repute.

It is idle to attempt to place the blame for the "Crime Wave" or any of the prevailing excesses of the day on any one thing. Many factors enter into the problem.

Our national prosperity has gone to our heads. As we get used to prosperity we'll sober down. In spite of the howls of the pessimists "God is in his Heaven." All's right with the world.

BREMEN MAY LEAVE TODAY FOR NEW YORK

the subsequent ice-imprisonment in this northern outpost.

He has been confined to the home of Jacques Le Tempier, the light-house keeper, for the past two days with a cold.

Dr. Louis Cuisinier, who came here a week ago with Duke Schiller, is superintending the repair work.

Koehl Is Pilot

LAKE ST. AGNES, QUE., April 24 — From miles around, hardy trappers trekked here today to await the arrival of the Bremen and the two German fliers who have been marooned with it on ice-bound Greenland since the plane ended its flight over the Atlantic, ten days ago. The fliers hoped to hop off from the island this morning.

If the Bremen is put into shape in time for a take-off today, it will fly here for refueling and then leave for New York probably tomorrow morning.

Captain Hermann Koehl will pilot the Bremen. He will be accompanied by Baron Ehrenfried Von Huenfeldt. Whether Major Fitzmaurice will come here in the Bremen also or go in the Ford plane to aid E. B. Balchen in handling the immense tri-motored monoplane and then change back to the Bremen here for the triumphant flight to New York, is not known.

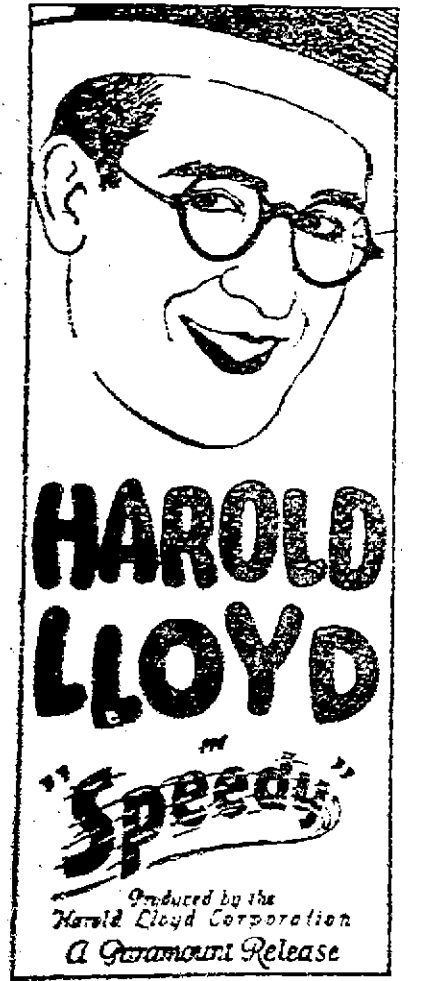

Clarence Chamberlin, who piloted Charles Levine to Germany in the monoplane Columbia last year was the center of attraction here today. He arrived here from Hartford, Conn., late yesterday in a Ford-bird monoplane.

Chamberlin was reticent about his plans. It is believed he intends to escort the Bremen from here to New York in another plane as a mark of courtesy for the honor paid him in Germany when he flew there.

HOLD TWO WOMEN AND MAN IN MURDER OF DETECTIVE

Hear Newmark Was Killed
For Failure To Deliver
As "Fixer."

CHICAGO, April 24 — Admitting that any one of Ben Newmark's numerous shady activities might have paved the way for his assassination, authorities today faced a complex situation in trying to unravel a maze of circumstantial evidence that might or might not lead to the actual slayer.

Newmark, alleged "fixer" politician and detective, former special investigator for State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, was shot to death yesterday in the bedroom of his bungalow by a mysterious assassin who fired a shotgun through the window.

Two women and a man, whose names were found in Newmark's little red memoranda book, are being held at the detective bureau, and other suspects are under surveillance. Two other men had been arrested but were released when police became convinced they had no connection with the crime.

Those under arrest are, Miss Cecelia McGoe, 28, Miss Susan Gere, 23, and Tony Ferraro, 26. The women are friends, and Ferraro is said to be the sweetheart of Miss Gere.

With the arrest of this trio, investigators were able to evolve their first definite theory as to a probable motive for Newmark's assassination. According to this theory, the politician was slain, because he had extorted money as a "fixer" and then failed to deliver.

From the women it was learned that Ferraro was facing prosecution under the Dyer act for alleged theft of an automobile in New Jersey. Miss Gere, his reputed sweetheart, is said to have appealed to Miss McGoe, a "special friend" of Newmark.

WEATHER HOLDS CAPT. WILKINS AT SPITZBERGEN

Man Who Flew Over Pole
(May Not Leave Until
Middle of May.

OSLO, NORWAY, April 24 — While the world lauds their remarkable flight over the "top o' the world," Captain George H. Wilkins and Carl Ben Eielson seem doomed today to remain at Green Harbor, Spitzbergen, until warm weather sets in.

In landing on the ice at Green Harbor after the short hop from Doedmansoeira (Dead Man's Island), where for five days they were isolated from the world by a snow storm of terrific proportions the fliers' Lockheed-Vega monoplane was slightly damaged.

The damage to their plane is not believed to have been serious but reports from Green Harbor indicate that the daring aviators were unable to make repairs with the materials at their disposal. It is also believed that the fliers could not procure sufficient fuel for the hop to this city, even if they could repair the plane.

Spitzbergen, the ice-bound isle which is farther north than any other in Europe, cannot be reached by shipping. It is not likely that any craft will be able to negotiate the icy seas surrounding it until the middle of May. The fliers, therefore, will probably have to wait until then to get back to civilization.

There had been plans afoot to have General Umberto Nobile's dirigible Italia, which is coming to Spitzbergen on the next hop of its Polar flight, bring a quantity of gasoline to Captain Wilkins and his companion. It is not known whether this plan will be followed in view of the fact that the plane is damaged.

It is probable that General Nobile and Captain Wilkins will meet at Spitzbergen. The Italia is coming to Kings Bay, which is only about five miles away from Green Harbor. Wilkins has indicated, according to reports reaching here, that he would like to give the Italian dirigible commander the benefit of some of the observations he made on his 2,200 mile flight from Point Barrow, Alaska.

MILLER BEGINS HIS TERM IN ATLANTA PEN

Former Government Official
Was Convicted of Conspiracy.

WASHINGTON, April 24 — Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, ex-member of congress and overseas World war veteran, was speeding to Atlanta today to begin service of an 18-months' sentence in the federal penitentiary.

Miller passed through Washington last night and is due at the prison this afternoon. Miller declined to discuss his conviction with reporters, except to say that a mandate of the supreme court must be obeyed and there was no reason for him to put off the beginning of his sentence to the last minute of grace allowed by law.

Miller was convicted of conspiracy to deprive the government of his honest services as an official in connection with the release of $7,000,000 of assets of the American Metals Co. a Swiss corporation of German ownership to the German owners. It was alleged that $390,000 was paid the conspirators to accomplish this release.

The former custodian was jointly indicted and twice tried with former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty. The first hearing resulted in a mistrial for both. On the second Daugherty was acquitted and Miller convicted.

of the candidates pledged to support Herbert Hoover" and that an "overwhelming lead" will be "rolled up" for Hoover in the presidential preference contest. The presidential preference votes cast in Ohio today merely provide for a registration of the popular sentiment prevailing in the Buckeye state. The outcome of this contest has no direct effect upon the balloting for national convention delegates and alternates.

The Ohio delegation to the Democratic national convention will comprise eight delegates-at-large and two delegates from each of the state's 22 congressional districts. This delegation of 52 delegates and the same number of alternates will be entitled to 48 each, and the 44 district delegates at-large being given a half-vote each, and the 44 district delegates one vote apiece.

Pomerene and White
Democratic candidates designated former U. S. Senator Alton Pomerene, Cleveland, and George White, Marietta, former Democratic national committeeman from Ohio, as their first and second choices, respectively, for the presidency.

With weather conditions favorable, Willis forces are expecting effective support at the polls in the rural districts. Hoover forces are anticipating rolling up a big vote in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Toledo and other industrial centers. Further control of the Republican state organization may be determined at today's primaries. The Willis forces now dominate the Republican state central committee which, by a vote of 19 to 1 last February, endorsed Willis as Ohio's "favorite son" presidential candidate.

Love's Embers — "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

Two Fair Conspirators Play a Trick on Dicky Graham.

MY LITTLE maid's face darkened with disappointment as I told her I could not spare her to go to the movies, and her lips began to tremble. Lillian averted a burst of tears just in time.

"It's because I need you to do some detective work for me, Katie," she said, carefully and tactfully eliminating me from the investigation of Jim's errand from Dicky which was suspected.

Jim's temperamental little wife winked back her tears and her face beamed. No movie in the world had a chance against that "allure" with my little maid.

"Sure! I do anything you want," she said, and Lillian lowered her voice impressively.

"It's like this, Katie," she said. "You know that Mr. Graham knows that red-headed man in the shack."

"Who tell Meesie Graham dot first?" she demanded with unconscious impudence, for just now we were in no position to reproach her.

"But I am sure Mr. Graham does not know the real character of the man," Lillian went on smoothly, "and as I have just received some information concerning them, there is something I must ask you to find out. You understand, do you not, that ordinarily, I would not ask you to watch your husband, when he is doing anything for Mr. Graham, but tonight it is absolutely necessary that I find out whether Mr. Graham has sent a message to the red-headed man by Jim."

"Eef eet anything dot Jeem miked op in," Katie asserted with a tinge of good-natured contempt for her husband's mentality which made my hands twitch to shake her, "I find eet out qweeck as leetle sheep shake hees tail."

Out of the corner of her eye Lillian flashed me an appreciative recognition of Katie's never-failing smile. Then she looked at the girl squarely.

"Here is the thing I wish to know," she said slowly and distinctly. "Tonight Jim came back from the station and drove directly up the hill."

"I know," Katie tossed her head. "Soch a fool ting to do. I watch heem and I see you go after heem." "I thought he might have a message from Mr. Graham to the red-headed man," Lillian went on, "but if he did, we gave him no opportunity to deliver it. Remember, I do not want to see the note or have you listen to the message if it is not written. I just want to be sure whether or not Jim talks to the red-headed man or his comrade tonight."

Katie folded her arms truculently. "Dot Jeem no get out of dees house tonight mitout me knowing eet," she declared, and Lillian smiled a laugh in a cough.

"All right, Katie," she said, "but do not let Jim know you have followed him. Another thing, I have cautioned Jim about bolting all the doors and windows tonight, and he is getting a friend of his to sleep here while Mr. Graham is gone. So when you go out after Jim be sure to lock the door after you and take the key with you. If you find that door bolted when you come back, come around to the side veranda door. I'll be watching there and slip you in. You understand every thing, don't you?"

"Oh, sure, I feez. Don't you worry your head, Meesie Underwood," she said grandly, and Lillian and I went on into the library, waiting only until we could lock the door behind us to let loose the laughter which we had stored up in our ribs while Katie was inflating her movie-fed ego.

"It's rather a low-down trick to play on the Dicky-bird," Lillian said when we had returned to sober consideration of the problem before us, "but I'd stake my life that one of these men in that shack is a devil.
